Permission for Third Party Copyright Material

Third Party Copyright Material is material you have not created yourself, or material where you have transferred your copyright to another party (e.g. a publisher). If your thesis includes any third party material, you must obtain permission from the copyright holders to include it in your thesis. Please refer to <https://copyright.curtin.edu.au/research/higher-degree-theses/> for additional information.

- Not applicable. No third party copyright material is contained in my thesis.
- I have obtained permission from the copyright holders to include their material in my thesis and I have attached copies of these permissions in an appendix to the thesis.
- I have not been able to obtain permission from the copyright holders to include their material in my thesis. In addition to depositing the final version of my thesis, I will also deposit a partial version with all copyright material for which I don't have permission removed. The removed material will be replaced with a citation and link to the published version or wording to describe the content along with this note, "content is removed due to copyright restrictions". Listed below are the chapters/pages which have been removed for this reason.

Commercial Restrictions

Please consider if your thesis contains University IP that is subject to commercial obligations, claims or restrictions imposed by the external organisation(s)/partner(s)/source(s) of funding that supported your research. (Such restrictions might include constraints on publishing, confidentiality agreements, third party ownership intellectual property or considerations for protecting intellectual property prior to patent filing for commercialisation etc.)

- I have confirmed with my Supervisor that the material contained in my thesis is not subject to any commercial restrictions arising from agreements between the University and external research partners.
- I have received the necessary approvals required for publication under any relevant agreements with external research partners.

Embargo Request

If you have a pending publication in review, or press reporting on material in your thesis, you may apply for a 2 year (maximum) embargo.

- Not applicable
- I request a two (2) year embargo to restrict access. The thesis metadata (including title, author, and abstract) will be displayed publicly during the embargo period. At the end of the embargo period, the thesis will be made available online.
- My thesis contains sensitive material which prevents it from being publicly available and I require a 5 year or permanent embargo (Please complete the section on Page 3).

Student Declaration

- I declare that the electronic version of my thesis lodged with the Library is the same as the final copy submitted to my Supervisor, for which I have been awarded a Pass.
- I grant to Curtin University or its duly authorised agent the right to archive and to make available all or part of my thesis, not covered by embargo, in the University's institutional repository in all formats.
- I confirm that all statements on this form are true and correct.
